Background

Gracielle was born in Manila, Philippines and raised in New Jersey. She attended Cornell University in Ithaca, New York, during which she was recognized in several selective senior honor societies for her commitment to undergraduate life and the law. She was accepted to the Government honors program for which she researched and wrote her honors thesis, "Illicit Interactions and the Obnoxious Organ Trade: A Theoretical Approach to Global Organ Trafficking". Gracielle graduated from Cornell in 2009 with a Bachelor of Arts cum laude with a double major in Government and Biological Sciences (Neurobiology and Behavior), along with a minor in International Studies.

Gracielle attended law school at Quinnipiac University School of Law in Hamden, Connecticut where she concentrated her studies in both business/finance law and intellectual property. She was selected for membership and associate editorship to the Quinnipiac Probate Law Journal, which also chose and published her student article entitled "Paradise Lost? Searching for New (Off) Shores: The State of Bank Secrecy, Fiduciary Mistrust, and International Estate Planning after the Financial Crisis." Gracielle graduated early and earned her Juris Doctorate with honors in December 2011.

Experience

Through her diverse background in both her education and practical experience, Gracielle offers comprehensive, multi-dimensional analyses to her clients for their business opportunities.

Prior to joining the firm, Gracielle was engaged in private law practice in New York City. Her practice areas included corporate law, intellectual property, domestic relations, immigration, and breach of contract litigation. Her experiences from law intern through attorney spans both the private and public sector, including a congressional internship with the late Senator Frank R. Lautenberg of New Jersey, in-house experience, and private law firm practice.

Gracielle is a member of the New York City Bar Association, the American Bar Association, the New York State Bar Association, and the Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity.
